Please report your photocopy tally to a staff member before you leave for payment. Please see below for Special Collections reading room information.

The researcher is responsible for acquiring any necessary permissions regarding copyright. Use privileges may be revoked for violation of the rules. The Filson has the right to perform security checks on patrons.

Additional Special Collections Reading Room Rules

A limited number of manuscripts and photographs may be used at one time (normally two folders or two volumes), the amount is up to the discretion of the staff servicing the collection. Material must be returned to the monitoring station in good order before other material can be received. Researchers must check out at the reference desk to make any payments and be cleared to leave.

When using collection, please maintain the order of the material used. DO NOT shuffle or otherwise rearrange the order of the manuscripts and photographs. Keep them flat on the table. DO NOT lean on them or hold them in your hands to read. DO NOT touch them more than necessary. If something is out of order or missing bring it to the staff's attention.

Staff will inform you about procedures regarding photocopies and digital photography of collections materials. A photocopy request form must be submitted when ordering copies or taking your own digital photographs. Items listed will be approved and, in the case of photocopies, copied by appropriate staff. Digital images are $0.20 a shot; please report your tally to a staff member before you leave for payment. Copies and digital photographs will be identified as being from The Filson's collection. Copies will either be available at the end of the researcher's visit or can be picked up or mailed at a later date. ALL COPIES/PHOTOS/TRANSCRIPTIONS ARE TO REMAIN IN THE EXCLUSIVE POSSESSION OF THE RESEARCHER.

Proper bibliographic and footnote credit is required. Permission to use quotes from manuscripts, or to reproduce photos and prints, must be obtained from the Curator of Special Collections.

I hereby confirm that I have read the above rules and the "Using the Collections" guidelines and will abide by them.
