Historical Note

The Louisville Collegiate School (LCS) was founded in 1915 by William Shallcross Speed and Virginia Perrin Speed. This non-profit, private school was established with the intent to educate girls from preschool to 12th grade. LCS is the oldest independent school in Louisville, Kentucky. Many of the incoming students in 1915 came from Semple Collegiate School, a college preparatory school that provided a progressive education for girls in Louisville from 1893 to 1915.

Louisville Collegiate School was situated on one acre of land and was designed in the colonial style by Nevin, Wischmeyer, and Morgan Architects. LCS quickly outgrew the space and acquired new land through donations. In 1927 the school outgrew its downtown location and moved to Glenmary Avenue, just east of downtown in the historic Cherokee Triangle. The new school building was designed in a Georgian Revival style by Fredric Lindley Morgan. By 1929 the school had an enrollment of 160 students with tuition averaging around $263 per student per year.

Boys in elementary school (preschool-6th grade) were permanently allowed to enroll at LCS since 1973. However, in 1981, the school hired its first male principal, Douglas MacKelcan. MacKelcan had high hopes of improving the school and advocated for a coed school. In 1982 the school invested $1.1 million to construct a separate structure for the male students in order to educate the girls and boys separately while sharing the same common spaces such as the library and cafeteria. By 1983 the school was completely coed due to the efforts of MacKelcan. Collegiate has continued to grow and expand since its opening in 1915.
