Survey Plats, 1880-1973.

Scope and Content Note

Collection of land surveys of neighborhoods in Jefferson County, Kentucky, previously owned by the Louisville Transit Company (a private company that ran much of the mass transit in the greater Louisville area in the mid-twentieth century). The surveys, which mainly date between 1920 and 1960, are plats showing roads as well as individual lots along these roads. Most surveys include a title, plan number, surveyor, and date, along with labels of the roads depicted. Places of particular interest include Camp Taylor, Audubon Park, Bowman Field and Shippingport Island. For a complete list of neighborhoods and main roads, see the folder list following the Organizational History.

Louisville Transit Company Survey Plats, 1880-1973.

Organizational History Note

The Louisville Transit Company, a successor of the Louisville Railway Company, was a private company that ran much of the mass transit in the greater Louisville area from the early 1950s through the early 1970s. The plats included in this collection were likely donated to The Filson after Louisville Transit folded in 1974.

The Louisville Transit Company began operating under that name in 1950; it was formerly called the Louisville Railway Company. The Louisville Railway Company was created in 1890 from a merger of the two main streetcar transit companies in Louisville, the Louisville City Railway and the Central Passenger Railway. The merger occurred due to the costs associated with switching from mule-powered streetcar lines to electric operations. Ridership fluctuated throughout the first half of the twentieth century; an increase in automobile use, as well as the Great Depression, caused a decline in Louisville Railway Company ridership during the 1920s and 1930s, whereas World War II brought about an increase in passengers due to restrictions on automobile use. Throughout the 1930s and 1940s, buses were slowly replacing streetcars; after World War II, the shift to buses was rapid. About 1950, the Louisville Railway Company's name was officially changed to the "Louisville Transit Company."

Continuing decline in ridership left the Louisville Transit Company to post its first ever deficit in 1971; in 1972, the company gave notice that it would have to cease operations in 1974. In 1973, the Louisville and Jefferson County governments gave subsidies to enable lower fares, but Louisville Transit Co. remained in deficit. Also during this time, the Transit Authority of River City (TARC) was formed after the State of Kentucky authorized local authorities to operate mass transit services with local government funding. TARC purchased the Louisville Transit Company after a November 1974 voter-approved transit tax and an $8.8 million federal grant.

Information for the above note was gathered from the "Streetcars" and "Transit Authority of River City" articles from The Encyclopedia of Louisville (edited by John E. Kleber; pages 855-857, 891-892).
