Scope and Content Note

This collection documents social justice movements and community events in Louisville, Kentucky, from 2017 to 2020. The collection consists of 1200 born-digital photographs captured by photographer Del Ramey and posted onto his personal website in fifteen albums. The photographs depict local activists, politicians, religious leaders, health care workers, labor union members, and other community members.

The bulk of the albums are related to protests against police brutality and racial injustice in the wake of Louisville Metro Police Department officers killing Breonna Taylor during a no-knock warrant on her home in Louisville on March 23, 2020. Photographs capture activists and community organizers chanting, marching, holding signs, gathering for speakers, dancing, making art, mourning, and helping one another. Many of the photographs were taken at Jefferson Square Park in downtown Louisville, where activists set up an encampment of supplies, tents, food, and a memorial to Breonna and others killed during the protests. Activists called the space Breeway, Breonna Square, and Injustice Square.

The collection replicates Ramey's original digital album arrangement on his website (<https://dar-lcp.smugmug.com>). Digital file names are original. Files are organized in digital folders by event. The digital folders are named using Ramey's titles. Processing archivists selected samples of Ramey's photographs to represent the range of activity and subject matter photographed. Ramey's original captions were maintained in the item-level listing. The reference sources used for the biographical note and album descriptions have been printed and are stored within the accession folder.

Biographical Note

Delvan Arthur Ramey (1948-) is a Louisville, Kentucky, retired electrical engineer and street photographer. He was born to Sarah Marjorie Van Hoose Ramey (1925-1993) and Henry Arthur Ramey (1924-2010) in Arlington, Virginia, on February 20, 1948. Ramey, his mother, and his two brothers moved to Louisville sometime in the 1950s. Ramey studied electrical engineering at the University of Louisville Speed Scientific School from 1966 to 1972, where he graduated with bachelor's and master's degrees.

He moved to Cincinnati, Ohio, to attend graduate school at the University of Cincinnati from 1973 to 1980. Photography was one of his hobbies while a graduate student. While in school in 1978, Ramey married Patricia J. Hoekman Rudolph (1951-).

In 1980, the couple moved to Framingham, Massachusetts, and Ramey began working as a Consulting Engineer with Compaq. He worked for Compaq for 22.5 years before taking a new position as a Consulting Engineer with Hewlett-Packard (HP) in May 2002. Intel hired Ramey as a Principal Engineer in July 2003. He stayed with Intel until November 2007. He then worked for two years at Advanced Micro Devices (AMD) before retiring in 2010. Del and Patricia moved back to Louisville around 2010. They were both members of the First Unitarian Church of Louisville. Ramey focused on documentary photography in his retirement, beginning with documenting Habitat for Humanity construction.

Album List

Album 1: Keep the horse!, August 19, 2017

Album of 21 photographs of a rally calling for the removal of the John Breckinridge Castleman statue from the Cherokee Triangle neighborhood in Louisville, Kentucky. A violent Unite the Right white supremacist rally in Charlottesville, Virginia, motivated Louisville Showing Up for Racial Justice to organize for the removal of the statue. The Majority and Movement for Black Lives (M4BL) called for a National Day of Action on August 19, 2017, in response to Charlottesville. Louisville activists and counter-protesters rallied at the Castleman statue on August 19th.<sup>1</sup>

Photographs depict activists speaking with megaphones, marching with two banners, and hanging the banners on the statue. The banners read “No Room for Racism” and “Take It Down.” The album includes photographs of a counter-protester pulling one of the banners of the statue and arguing with the protesters.

Album 2: Sanctuary, DACA, Refugees, September 8, 2017

Album of 56 photographs of a protest against the Trump administration’s plan to end the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program in Louisville. Senator Mitch McConnell was scheduled to be at an event at the University of Louisville Ekstrom Library on September 8, 2017. The protest began outside of the library and moved to the interior lobby in hopes of being heard by McConnell.<sup>2</sup> Photographs depict students and employees holding signs and speaking, and verbal confrontations between a counter-protester and the crowd. Some protesters are wearing Black Lives Matter t-shirts, stickers, and buttons.

Album 3: Louisville Occupy ICE, June 30, 2018-July 7, 2018

Album of 223 photographs of a Families Belong Together/Las Familias Merecen Estar Unidas rally. The rally was protesting the United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement's (ICE) separation of detained immigrants and asylum seekers from the children who accompanied them. The protest occurred at Louisville Metro Hall on June 30, 2018. A subset of the crowd marched to the ICE office at the Heyburn Building to call for the abolishment of ICE. Photographs depict people holding signs and banners, speakers, and chant leaders at the rally. Community leaders documented include Jesús Alberto Ibáñez of Mijente Louisville, Representative Attica Scott, Chanelle Helm of the Movement for Black Lives, Tamarra Wieder of Planned Parenthood Advocates of Indiana and Kentucky, Inc., and Carla Wallace of Louisville SURJ.

On July 2, Mijente Louisville, BLM Louisville, Stand Up Sunday, Louisville SURJ, and others set up Camp Compasión in front of the Louisville ICE building and called their action Occupy ICE, in solidarity with the nationwide Occupy ICE movement.<sup>3</sup> Local demands included:

- “public statements from all elected officials, condemning the actions of ICE and callings for its abolishment at the state and federal levels.
- a border patrol that acts as humanitarian rescue force.
- establishment of a truth and reconciliation commission to examine abuses perpetrated by homeland security agencies
- end Operation Streamline
- reparations distributed to the millions that have been terrorized by ICE
- end hyper-criminalization and mass incarceration of Black & Brown communities.”<sup>4</sup>

Ramey's photographs document Camp Compasión on July 2, 3, and 4. Occupiers and Department of Homeland Security Police are depicted. The album ends with photographs of an Interfaith Coalition for Immigrant Justice march and white militia counter-protesters on July 7, 2018.

Album 4: Protesting New ICE Courts, April 2, 2018

Album of 45 photographs of a protest against the opening of a United States Department of Homeland Security immigration court in Louisville on April 2, 2018. Mijente Louisville, Louisville Showing Up for Racial Justice, ACLU Kentucky, Fairness Campaign, Interfaith Coalition for Immigrant Justice, Stand Up Sunday, and Black Lives Matter Louisville organized the protest. The protest occurred at noon at the Heyburn Building on 332 West Broadway. According to a Facebook event for the protest, “Groups
